Your New Work Serving the Common Good

The Walker Leadership Institute at Eden Theological Seminary welcomes you to join NEXT Steps, a program for professionals who have recently or are planning to retire and are exploring new, purpose-filled engagement with their communities. All program activities are designed to stimulate your individual self-discovery and develop a personal plan for your new and meaningful chapter of work and service.

You should take NEXT Steps if:

- You are 55 or up.
- You are a person of faith.
- You want to transition your career experiences and talents to benefit causes of personal importance.
- You want to explore combining your professional skills, the needs of the world and your own beliefs and convictions.

NEXT Steps Description

NEXT Steps is a structured program with self-discovery through:

- Personal development
- Small group engagement
- Speakers
- Networking
- Career or volunteer guidance

The session leader is Rev. Dr. Martha Robertson, an Eden M.Div. grad and retired faculty member. Dr. Robertson's background also includes leadership and conflict management. Her extensive work placing students in nonprofits and her broad experience with mission organizations make Dr. Robertson a perfect fit to lead your exploration of what's next.
