

Greetings from Eden's Registrar!

My name is Michelle Wobbe and I am the Registrar and Director of Assessment at Eden. I'm so excited to get to know you!

In this packet you will find materials that will help you to register for your first semester at Eden. I recommend reading through the documents in the order that they are presented. By the time that you reach the link for the registration form, you should be ready to select your courses! Please feel free to reach out to me via email or phone with any questions you have or schedule an appointment for additional guidance. I can be reached by email (mwobbe@eden.edu) or phone (314.918.2599)

If you wish to schedule an appointment, please click on the link below. You will be prompted to select phone call or zoom meeting. I am open to both options, but do find that zoom meetings can be more productive with the ability to look at shared screens.

All courses are 3 credit hours unless otherwise noted

Our course schedule is broken down into many sections. Below you will find a break-down of how the schedule is organized:

The top sections is where you will see Morning, Afternoon, and Evening Classes that meet synchronously in a variety of modalities (blended, hybrid, online only, etc)/ You will note that courses may be offered with different start/end times within those sections. The course time is indicated above the course name. A description of course modalities is provided at the end of this document.

Each course entry is "coded" to give you additional information about the course. An example is given below:

B101A Intro to the Bible and Its Interpretation (B) Koepf

- B101 is the course number
- An "A" after the course number indicates that this is the morning section of a two-sectioned course
- Intro to the Bible and Its Interpretation is the name of the course
- (B) after the course name indicates that the course instruction mode is "Blended"
- Koepf is the name of the professor teaching the course
- If the course shows an asterisk (*) or double asterisk () after the professor's name, that course fulfills a special elective requirement for some degree programs

how to read the course schedule

The bottom left section of the course schedule, under the heading of 8-week Intensive Asynchronous Courses, lists the required and elective courses being offered asynchronously in the Fall 2022 term. You will see that we have two 8-week sessions (session 1 and session 2), with their own unique start/end dates.

The bottom right section of the course schedule is further divided into two categories:

- Under the heading of Intensive Focused Learning (IFL), you will find a selection of 1 credit hour courses, with their own specific schedule (available on the third page of the course schedule document).
- Under the heading of Alternatively Scheduled Courses, you will find courses that do not fit into the most conventionally scheduled courses above.

The course schedule document also contains a simple listing of all offered courses including modality, dates, days, times as necessary.

The next page of this document further explains the numbering structure, abbreviations, and definitions of course modalities.

Course Number Key

B = Biblical Studies	100 - 199 = required courses

What classes should I take?

As a new student in any of our master's degree programs, there are required courses that you will take in a mostly prescribed sequence and elective courses that you will add to your schedule as you are able. The lists below will guide you in selecting the appropriate courses for the Fall term. Course Descriptions are provided at the end of this document.

The typical required courses for a first-year MDIV student are:

B101 Intro to the Bible and Its Interpretation
HT101 Christian Ethics
M101 Pastoral Theology and Care
PCL101 Progressive Christian Leadership Seminar

If you wish to add an elective to your Fall term, please choose from the following:

- HT257 The Devil is a Lie! The African American Prophetic Tradition
- M287 Race and Power Summit
- IFL249 Leading a Missional Organization
- IFL256 Finance for Missional Organizations
- IFL265 The Eden Gleaning Project
- House of Study Course (HOS001-HOS007)

The typical required courses for a first-year MAPS student are:

B101 Intro to the Bible and Its Interpretation
HT101 Christian Ethics
PCL101 Progressive Christian Leadership Seminar

If you wish to add an elective to your Fall term, please choose from the following:

- HT257 The Devil is a Lie! The African American Prophetic Tradition
- M287 Race and Power Summit
- IFL249 Leading a Missional Organization
- IFL256 Finance for Missional Organizations
- IFL265 The Eden Gleaning Project
- House of Study Course (HOS001-HOS007)

The typical required courses for a first-year MTS student are:

B101 Intro to the Bible and Its Interpretation
HT101 Christian Ethics

Depending on your area of concentration (Bible or History/Theology), you will want to add an appropriate elective from the list below.

- HT257 The Devil is a Lie! The African American Prophetic Tradition
- M287 Race and Power Summit
- IFL249 Leading a Missional Organization

What classes should I take?

Course Descriptions

B101 Introduction to Bible and Its Interpretation

The first required biblical studies course introduces students to a variety of interpretive tools for reading and understanding the Bible with particular attention to the student's awareness of pre-existing assumptions and intentionality in choosing ethical ways of interpreting scripture.

HT101 Christian Ethics

What is the relationship between Christian faith and the social issues that create injustice in our society and world? How have Christians formulated opinions on what is good, evil, just, or unjust? This class seeks to answer these questions by surveying theological, social, and philosophical views on Christian ethics. Through this work, students will gain familiarity with the nature and history of Christian social ethics, examine the nature of their own theo-ethical stances, and develop the ability to think critically about the moral and ethical frameworks that make up the church and society more broadly.

M101 Pastoral Theology and Care

In this course we will explore introductory pastoral care issues related to normal and crisis life events. We will survey a range of theoretical and practical issues related to the care of individuals and communities as they move through these life changes. Because listening, responding, and self-awareness are key elements in the art of pastoral care, emphasis will be placed on developing skills in these areas. We will give particular attention to the integration of theological reflection, family systems theories, and practical skills throughout the course. Because systemic oppression plays a particular role in human suffering, we will examine how oppression dictates the terms of suffering and grief. As well, we will focus attention on cultural and communal contexts and the consequent strategies of care.

HOS001-007 House of Study Courses

Houses of Study are willed to be brave spaces to consider practical theories and theologies learned in the classroom, and how they intersect with ones' own experience and willingness to dismantle oppressive forces. These courses will be intentional with guidance through your denominational ordination process, and for others, a place to learn and practice professional behaviors and boundaries consistent with becoming future professionals. Please note: curricular assignments and event creating are designed to meet areas of social justice, spiritual wellness or community building. Master level students (MDIV, MAPS, MTS) who enroll in a House of Study will earn .5 credit per semester towards the open elective requirements and can be repeated each term.

HT257 The African American Prophetic Tradition

Students in this hybrid class will examine the theology and rhetoric of the African American Religious Tradition. Students will review and reflect upon how the development and deployment of this tradition has helped to shape, sustain, challenge, and transform the social, political, and religious realities of the country, culture and the church. In addition, this class will seek ways to employ the most righteous renditions and themes of the tradition to our current social, political, and ecclesiastical contexts.

What classes should I take?

M287 Race and Power Summit

Race and Power Summit aims to create a bridge between racial analysis and organizing work and provide ongoing professional development and resources for organizers and leaders at the intersection of policy, praxis, and philosophy. The four plenary discussions focused on the reality of our current fight for democracy, strategizing for that fight, and casting a vision for what the future of democracy could be. Please note: The dates for the Race and Power Summit are November 30 – December 2, 2022. This event is being held in Baltimore, MD. Transportation, lodging, and summit registration costs are the responsibility of the student.

IFL249 Leading a Missional Organization: Church and Nonprofit

In this course we will look at scripture, lessons in leadership from history, academic theory, examples from current missional organizations, and hands-on practical methods for leading organizations that are mission focused. The course covers vision, mission and values as well financial, human resource, technology, governance, and volunteer management practices for leading the mission driven organization. Each student will produce a mission plan for an organization that they are involved in or one they would like to create.

IFL256 Finance for Missional Organizations

When we are called to lead a mission-driven organization, we operate differently than for-profit entities. Our work is theologically centered in faithful stewardship and embodied justice. Professional financial management is often the most challenging part of this work. This course is an overview of the critical elements of responsible fiscal leadership, including accounting, budgeting, accountability & transparency, diversified income, and planning capital projects. In support of the course objectives, students will learn the basics of Quickbooks, a leading accounting software platform.

IFL265 The Eden Gleaning Project

The Eden Gleaning Project works with farmers in Vincennes, Indiana to glean thousands of pounds of sweet corn and potatoes that is then distributed to food ministries in the St. Louis region. This IFL engages 2 days of synchronous learning as well as advance preparation and a final reflection: Day 1: glean potatoes and sweet corn in Vincennes Indiana, followed by a discussion on the biblical understanding of gleaning and modern-day forms of gleaning. Day 2: Class includes a discussion about food deserts and food insecurities in the St. Louis region and a time to distribute the gleaned produce to the St. Louis food ministries. Children are welcome to participate in both the gleaning and the distribution of the produce. Please note: Students will choose between two dates: August 18-19 or August 25-26. The professor for this course will reach out to all interested students for their date preference.
